

I heartily applaud the concept of helping American families and children starting early on the road to fiscal planning and saving.

I worry that the 'eligibility' area, as stated, implies a lessening of standards regarding proper access to financial opportunity.

In today's climate, I heartily endorse all current requirements in terms of proper documentation standards.

regards

Mel Brackman